

Always Amazin'

Wednesday, April 12, 2006

The Schmitter?

This email is so odd I had to share it:

From: Los Pantalones

What are your thoughts on the food at Shea stadium? I'm a die-hard Mets fan who has been disappointed by nearly all of Shea's concession offerings beside their knish (circa 1987) and their italian ices. Anyway, at the beginning of the 2005 season, they offered something called "The Schmitter" for a weekend series against the Phils. It was easily the most delicious thing I'd eaten in any ballpark. Sadly, it's no longer offered, but I was hoping that with your pull you could help mount a campaign for its return.

Signed,
Tired of Bringing My Own Food to Shea

I, too, brown bag it every time I head out to Shea. But if this "Schmitter" is as tasty as "Los Pantalones" claims, that may change. Has anyone else sunk their teeth into this sandwich? Lemme know...if this is something more than a couple of people agree with, I'll see what I can do with my ultra-limited connections.

Copyright 2007 NJ.com. All Rights Reserved.